§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Standard Requirements

(a) The facility shall not conduct cross-gender strip searches or cross gender visual body cavity searches (meaning a search of the anal or genital opening) except in exigent circumstances or when performed by medical practitioners.

(b) As of August 20, 2015, or August 20, 2017 for a facility whose rated capacity does not exceed 50 inmates, the facility shall not permit cross-gender pat-down searches of female inmates, absent exigent circumstances. Facilities shall not restrict female inmates' access to regularly available programming or other out-of-cell opportunities in order to comply with this provision.

(c) The facility shall document all cross-gender strip searches and cross-gender visual body cavity searches, and shall document all cross-gender pat-down searches of female inmates.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Standard Requirements

(d) The facility shall implement policies and procedures that enable inmates to shower, perform bodily functions, and change clothing without nonmedical staff of the opposite gender viewing their breasts, buttocks, or genitalia, except in exigent circumstances or when such viewing is incidental to routine cell checks. Such policies and procedures shall require staff of the opposite gender to announce their presence when entering an inmate housing unit.

(e) The facility shall not search or physically examine a transgender or intersex inmate for the sole purpose of determining the inmate's genital status. If the inmate's genital status is unknown, it may be determined during conversations with the inmate, by reviewing medical records, or, if necessary, by learning that information as part of a broader medical examination conducted in private by a medical practitioner.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Standard Requirements

(f) The agency shall train security staff in how to conduct cross-gender pat-down searches, and searches of transgender and intersex inmates, in a professional and respectful manner, and in the least intrusive manner possible, consistent with security needs.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Purpose of the Standard

To limit intimate bodily contact of inmates by staff and enable bodily privacy for both male and female inmates in order to prohibit abuse and trauma that might arise from that contact or viewing.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Implementation

All prisons and jails, regardless of their size, must comply with the prohibitions against cross-gender pat-searches of female inmates.

This provision of the standard was phased in:

- Small facilities (i.e., rated capacity not to exceed 50 inmates) had to be compliant with this standard by August 20, 2017.
- Larger facilities (i.e., rated capacity exceeding 50 inmates) were to be compliant as of August 20, 2015.

Now, all prisons and jails must prohibit cross-gender pat-down searches of female inmates, absent exigent circumstances.

All cross-gender pat searches of female inmates must be documented. A female's access to programming and other opportunities cannot be restricted in order to comply with this standard.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Implementation

- Facilities must have an established practice prohibiting conduct of cross-gender strip searches or cross-gender visual body cavity searches except in exigent circumstances (i.e., temporary and unforeseen) or when performed by medical practitioners.
 - All cross-gender strip or visual body cavity searches must be documented.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Implementation

- It is important when determining whether a circumstance is “exigent,” such that it would allow cross-gender pat searches of female inmates or cross-gender strip or body cavity searches of male or female inmates, that facility staff understand what “temporary” and “unforeseen” mean in this context.
 - For example, a typical staff shortage is not an exigent circumstance since staff shortages are often not unforeseen (they may happen frequently so that the facility should expect them), and a shortage may not be temporary if it is the result of the long-term absence of some staff. However, a riot that requires staff to respond to a temporary and unforeseen emergency would constitute an exigent circumstance. A natural disaster that prevents staff from reporting to work, or requires emergency measures within the facility, would also be an exigent circumstance.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Implementation

- The facility must demonstrate that their policies, procedures and practices allow inmates to shower, perform bodily functions, and change clothes without being viewed by non-medical staff of the opposite gender except in exigent circumstances or when viewing is incidental to routine cell checks.
 - To further this protection, opposite gender staff must announce their presence when entering an inmate housing unit, thus allowing inmates to “cover up”. To the extent that cameras are focused on an area in which inmates are likely to be undressed or toileting, such as showers, bathrooms, and individual cells, the cameras should only be monitored by officers or nonmedical administrators of the same gender as the inmates viewed through the camera.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Implementation

- The facility must have an established practice that prohibits transgender or intersex inmates from being physically examined for the sole purpose to determine the inmate's genital status.
- Facility security staff must be trained in how to conduct cross-gender pat-down searches, and searches of transgender and intersex inmates, in a professional and respectful manner. These searches also must be done in the least intrusive manner possible, consistent with security needs. It is never appropriate for a transgender or intersex inmate to be searched by both a male officer and a female officer, with the male officer searching the parts of the body that are anatomically male and the female officer searching parts of the body that are anatomically female. A case-by-case determination of the most appropriate staff member to conduct the search is necessary and should take into consideration the gender expression of the inmate.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Implementation

- Inmates must be given the information they need in order to cover up when opposite-gender staff members, both custody and non-custody staff (includes e.g. clinicians, case workers, senior staff making supervisory rounds), are working in their housing areas. To ensure this, the facility must have a requirement and practice that opposite-gender staff announce their presence so that inmates can cover up. When the status quo of the gender-supervision on a housing unit changes from exclusively same gender, to mixed- or cross-gender supervision, the opposite-gender staff is required to verbally announce their arrival on the unit. Additional systems may be needed to supplement the verbal cross-gender announcement in units with inmates who are deaf or hard of hearing; however, additional or alternative systems are not sufficient alone and cannot replace the announcement.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Challenges

- Implementing the ban on cross-gender pat searches of female inmates in facilities where this may have been the normal practice for many years.
 - Changing practices and routines that have been institutionalized over an extended period of time can prove challenging and requires extensive training and thorough understanding of the standards and the reason for the new procedures. It will be necessary for supervisory staff to observe and monitor practice to ensure the prohibitions are normalized and institutionalized.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Challenges

- Ensuring that at the completion of training, all security staff in a facility fully understand how to conduct cross-gender pat searches and searches of transgender and intersex inmates in a professional and respectful manner.
 - If the facility has a policy and practice of searches conducted in accordance with the inmate's gender identity or asking inmates to identify the gender of staff with whom they would feel most comfortable conducting the search, specialized and detailed training on such policies/practices is especially critical in order for security staff to conduct these searches professionally and respectfully according to agency policy. Putting this training into practice is often difficult because it represents a significant shift in the way searches are conducted.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Challenges

- Ensuring the cross-gender announcements are effective, especially in very large facilities where a verbal announcement may be insufficient to warn inmates that opposite gender staff are entering the area.
 - Refer to the FAQ from 2/19/14 on the examples of announcements that are compliant with this standard. The primary way to comply with the standard is by making an audible verbal announcement. However, a buzzer or bell may be acceptable if it is understood by all inmates to announce the entry of an opposite-gender staff person onto the housing unit, it cannot be confused with other sounds heard by inmates, and it is not a sound used for any other purpose.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Challenges

- Implementing the cross-gender announcement in men's facilities when it has not previously been the practice, particularly when the perception of female staff is that the announcement in some way diminishes their ability to be effective or puts them in uncomfortable or even dangerous positions in relation to inmates.
 - Ensure the cross-gender announcement is conducted in a manner that is not more obtrusive or frequent than required. In some cases, challenges arise because of already existent culture problems in the institution. Cross-gender announcements have been accepted practice in women's facilities for decades and have been effectively implemented in men's facilities without significant difficulty by many agencies. Agencies and facilities that have encountered problems or resistance from staff should request free technical assistance from the PRC

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Best Practices

- Facilities should have policy and practice that prohibits cross-gender strip and visual body cavity searches except in exigent circumstances or when performed by medical practitioners (see the discussion of exigent circumstances above). Policy should require documentation of these searches.
- There are some best-practice strategies for ensuring the smooth implementation of this standard and, in particular, the announcement provision. They include quality training for staff regarding the purpose of this standard, modeling from leadership, and a repeated articulation for staff of the benefit to institutional culture when inmates can expect some bodily privacy.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Best Practices

- Operationally, four options are in current practice for searches of transgender or intersex inmates/residents/detainees:
 - 1) Searches conducted only by medical staff;
 - 2) Pat searches of adult inmates conducted by female staff only, especially given there is no prohibition on the pat searches female staff can perform (except in juvenile facilities);
 - 3) Asking inmates/residents/detainees to identify the gender of staff with whom they would feel most comfortable conducting the search; and
 - 4) Searches conducted in accordance with the inmate's gender identity. See FAQ from 12/2/16.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Best Practices

- Frequent, quality training for staff on conducting searches in a professional manner is essential, especially when searches involve transgender or intersex individuals. If the facility has a policy that allows inmates to express their preference regarding the gender of the staff member to conduct their search, it is important that staff are well trained and understand this procedure.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Audit issues

- Determining whether facilities that house female inmates prohibit cross-gender pat-down searches, absent exigent circumstances. The auditor will have to look at instances when cross-gender pat searches of female inmates took place and verify that the circumstances were indeed exigent, as described above.
- Determining if facilities are restricting female inmates' access to regularly available programming or other out-of-cell opportunities in order to comply with this standard.
- Assessing whether facility staff have been properly and effectively trained on search policy, procedure and practice related to strip searches, bodily cavity searches, pat searches and searches of transgender and intersex inmates. This requires reviewing training curricula and logs, and interviewing staff and inmates.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Audit issues

- Observing whether inmates have the required privacy in housing units and cells when showering, toileting and changing clothes. This includes determining through observations and interviews of staff and inmates whether cross-gender announcements are the regular practice of the facility.
- Determining whether opposite-gender staff are monitoring cameras to the extent that cameras are focused on an area in which inmates are likely to be undressed or toileting, such as showers, bathrooms, and individual cells. An auditor will observe control rooms where camera feeds are viewed and determine whether inmate toilets, showers, or changing areas are visible to staff, and, if so, will also look at the staffing of those areas to ensure that opposite-gender staff are not viewing cameras where they may see inmates using the toilet, showering, or undressing.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Standard Variations

Lockups:

- No phased in effective dates.
- No prohibition against cross-gender pat searches of any detainees (male or female).
- Lockups typically do not have housing units. Therefore, the facility is required to have policies and procedures that require staff of the opposite gender to announce their presence when entering an area where detainees are likely to be showering, performing bodily functions, or changing clothing

Community Confinement:

- Community Confinement facilities typically do not have housing units per se. Therefore, the facility is required to have policies and procedures that require staff of the opposite gender to announce their presence when entering an area where residents are likely to be showering, performing bodily functions, or changing clothing.

§115.15/115/215/315

Limits to cross-gender viewing and searches

Standard Variations

Juvenile Facilities:

- No phased in effective dates.
- Cross-gender pat-down searches of juvenile residents, both male and female, are prohibited except in exigent circumstances.
- In facilities (such as group homes) that do not contain discrete housing units, staff of the opposite gender shall be required to announce their presence when entering an area where residents are likely to be showering, performing bodily functions, or changing clothing.
